$1.3 million approved for fort development

No York boats packed with trade goods plied the sunny ripples of the North Saskatchewan, and no prime beaver pelts were on offer, but the excitement was never higher on the grassy benchland south-east of Elk Point, as government officials and history buffs gathered for the unveiling of plans for a major historical development at the site of two of Alberta's earliest fur trading posts, Fort George and Buckingham House.

A joint announcement by the Honorable Greg Stevens, Minister of Culture and Multiculturalism, and Deputy Prime Minister Don Mazankowski of the approval of over $1.3 million in funding for the project brought an end to many years of hoping that some day the significance of these sites would be recognized.

A total of $1,385,250 has been committed from the Canada/Alberta Northern Development Subsidiary Agreement over the next four years to provide for the construction of trails, signs, improved site access, and a small visitor reception centre with associated displays and illustrations. Stevens noted that this is only a beginning toward the Elk Point Historical Society's hope for total reconstruction of the two forts, and pledged help in finding funds to continue the development.

Mazankowski saluted those who had contributed to the plans for development, as 'a demonstration of what can be done when everyone works together.' The project will create up to 35 jobs, as well as enhancing the tourism potential and 'putting this part of Alberta on the map in a more significant way.' He said that the Federal and Provincial Governments are happy to play a part in bringing the plans to reality, 'together, we have done it with you.'

'The past is here,' MLA John Drobot told the gathering, touching on the courage, perseverance and hard work of the fur brigadiers who established the forts, their legacy serving as a 'shining example to the Historical Society.' He urged reconstruction of the forts to preserve the history of the era, as 'too much has already been lost.'

Drobot paid special tribute to former Historical Society cornerstone Mary Bennett who spent countless hours in planning and lobbying for development of the site, but whose life was claimed by cancer before she could see the results of her work and that of her and Multiculturalism Greg Stevens, who are shown with one of the cairns which, until now, have been the only recognition of the 200-year-old site's historic past as one of the first fur trading posts in Alberta.

Ag. Society unveils plans for fairgrounds

Elk Point Agricultural Society unveiled plans for their comprehensive fairgrounds--agricultural pavilion project Saturday evening, with Deputy Prime Minister Don Mazankowski, MLA John Drobot and Mayor Byron Mann among those present to view the artist's renderings of the 20 acre site.

Although a site has not been decided upon for the complex, consideration is being given to a Town-owned parcel along Highway 41 north of the Alico Motor Inn.

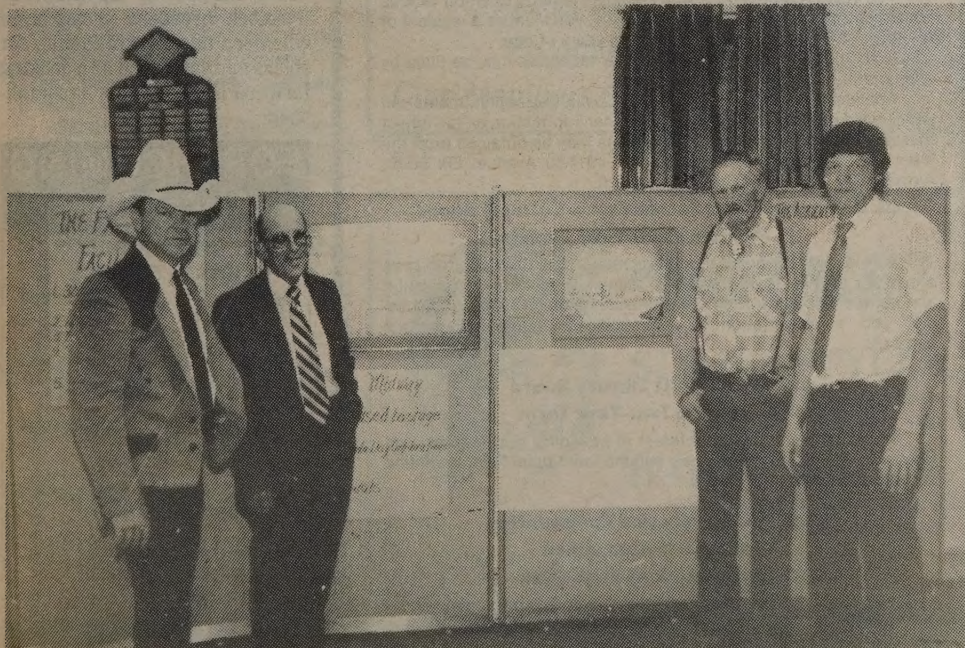

The 3000-seat Agricultural Pavilion would complement the existing facilities of the A. G. Ross Agricentre, by offering a permanent dirt floor more suitable for rodeos, cattle and horse shows, indoor circus and carnival performances, equestrian training and possibly for such sports as soccer and archery. Suitable meeting facilities for local 4-H clubs, as well as a location for holding livestock-related college courses have been considered in the planning. Oil industry exhibitions could also be held in the spacious premises.

A large grassed midway area with a stage, bleachers and concession booths could be used as a permanent and convenient home for the Canada Day Celebrations, as well as serving as the site of fairs and carnivals.

Three various-sized outdoor show rings are being proposed to handle any possible livestock show or similar activity during the summer months.

WHERE THERE'S A WILL, THERE'S A WAY--and these dedicated individuals will work until they find it, to bring plans for the Elk Point Agricultural Society's fairgrounds and agricultural pavilion to a successful completion.

Plans for fairgrounds

A picnic area with facilities for overnight parking for trailers and other vehicles, and a large parking lot for those attending functions at the site are also planned.

'We have been told a lot of reasons not to build this fairground,' Ag Society Glenn Harms told the gathering, 'but we're going to make a stand. We need this, and we're not stopping...for hell or high water.'

Traditionally, the Ag Society concentrated on operation of the arena and ice-related activities, but new members in the past few years have brought new interests, primarily on the agricultural side, to the fore. Because of the location of the A. G. Ross Arena in a residential area, Harms and his executive felt it would not be fair to the residents to 'bring large quantities of livestock into your backyards' by holding horse and cattle shows there. Thus, a need for a more suitable location was determined.

Deputy Prime Minister Don Mazankowski remarked on the 'vibrant, aggressive spirit of the community' which he felt had developed through the close relationship between agricultural and business communities. He congratulated the Ag Society and commended them on their 'very ambitious undertaking' with 'no doubt in my mind that you will achieve your objective.'

Mazankowski, Mayor Byron Mann and MLA John Drobot all mentioned funding programs applicable to this type of project which are available through the various levels of government. Mann predicted 'THIS project won't take 25 years' to become a reality, and added that he would 'look forward to its completion.' Drobot urged that it be 'a community effort' and with true Elk Point spirit, said that with the community involved, 'there's no stopping us.'

Harvey Aarbo, Master of Ceremonies for the evening, said that in 1912, his grandfather was a director of the group who put on Elk Point's first livestock show, 'and he didn't even speak any English.' Aarbo feels that there are a number of top purebred livestock breeders in the area who need this type of facility for shows and sales, and he is looking forward to seeing this accomplished.

torical Society's hope for total reconstruction of the two forts, and pledged help in finding funds to continue the development.

Mazankowski saluted those who had contributed to the plans for development, as 'a demonstration of what can be done when everyone works together.' The project will create up to 35 jobs, as well as enhancing the tourism potential and 'putting this part of Alberta on the map in a more significant way.' 'The past is here,' MLA John Drobot told the gathering, touching on the courage, perseverance and hard work of the fur brigades who established the forts, their legacy serving as a 'shining example to the Historical Society.' He urged reconstruction of the forts to preserve the history of the era, as 'too much has already been lost.'

Drobot paid special tribute to former Historical Society cornerstone Mary Bennett who spent countless hours in planning and lobbying for development of the site, but whose life was claimed by cancer before she could see the results of her work and that of her fellow supporters. 'Mary must be smiling up there because at last (the plans) may become a reality.'

Minister of Public Works, Supply and Services Ernie Isley addressed the tourism aspect, calling the site 'our answer to the Reynolds Museum, Head-Smashed-In Buffalo Jump, and the Tyrrell Museum. If we attract the rubber tired traffic to this area, they will go on to other tourist spots in the Lakeland.' Isley introduced Yvette Vincent, the first northeastern Alberta appointee to the Alberta Historical Foundation, and Lakeland Tourist Association Manager Lise Langvin.

Sid Holthe of the Elk Point Historical Society gave a brief historical perspective of the site, with the North Saskatchewan as a barrier between the 'canoe Indians to the north and the mounted Indians to the south' who both discovered that the 'palefaces in the east would give up metal things to make life easier...just for furs.' He spoke of the subsequent development of the forts by James Hughes and Angus Shaw of the North West Company and William Tomison of the Hudsons Bay Company, just a few hundred meters apart for common protection in time of unrest, which funneled the furs to the east and to Europe, and provided those heading further into the western wilderness with supplies of pemmican. 'We must not let their story be lost. We are approaching the 200th anniversary of the founding of these forts, and we have delayed long enough.'

Frank Mayner of the Fort George-Buckingham House Advisory Board, told of the long-standing efforts of the Historical Society toward preservation and enhancement of the site, with the support of both the Town of Elk Point and the Elk Point Chamber of Commerce. The Advisory Board was started two years ago, and supports the concept of total reconstruction of the forts, plus an interpretive centre.

Archaeological Project Manager Lynda Guleson, who has spent a fascinating summer searching the area between the forts known as Fort George Plantation, for artifacts of the Indian encampment situated there during the years the forts were in operation, told of her discoveries which will help to determine the impact of the European traders on the native population of that time. The unexpected discovery of the foundation of a building not shown on records of the forts has spurred Ms. Guleson on to further efforts, which will continue over the next few weeks.

The visitors to the site were also addressed by Elk Point Mayor Byrror Mann, who said the visit was 'an indication that many leaders in government recognize the potential of the site,' and by Elk Point Chamber of Commerce President Vicki Brooker, who stressed the importance of development of the site as a major tourist attraction for the Lakeland.

Tours of the site and a buffalo barbecue were also parts of the momentous day.

An exciting week

It's been quite a week. Amoco and Dome have consummated their long courtship, the on-again-off-again Husky upgrader is on for sure, with $1.27 billion in funding committed--both of which will have spinoff effects in our area. What more could we expect in one week?

Saturday was more than we could possibly have hoped for. In the space of a few short hours, we were showered with $1.3 million from the Canada /Alberta Northern Development Agreement to begin work on development of the Fort George -

Buckingham House fur trading forts as a major tourist attraction, and then the Agricultural Society announced plans for a huge complex to include a large pavilion building, a midway area, outdoor show rings, and picnic and parking areas. Whew! Heavy excitement!

All four of these will bring increased employment opportunities, increased business revenue, and an influx of people, in some cases permanent residents and in some cases up to an estimated 30,000 tourists per year, to our area. This cannot help but benefit our businesses, our tax base and our lifestyle.

The fort restoration is something some of us have been hoping and working towards for a number of years. The $1.3 million is a far cry from the estimated $15 million it could cost to completely reconstruct the two forts and provide an interpretive centre--but it's a good start. And as Rob Holliday of the Advisory Committee said soon after the announcement, 'it's hard to stop someone from building a house once they've got the foundation in.' This funding is the forts' foundation.

The Agricultural Society has taken on a big project, but there is little chance that they will abandon it. Instead, they'll just keep working away, bit by bit, dollar by dollar, until they see it through. These are far-sighted, determined individuals who like a challenge, and they don't give up. Take, for example, the ultra-successful Trade Fair, which some folks predicted just wouldn't get off the ground. They will succeed, just wait and see--and lend a helping hand if you can.

It's usually in the spring that you hear the phrase, 'on the edge of a dream', at the various graduations in the area. We, with the prospect of increased oil activity, a major tourist attraction and a large recreational facility on our horizon, are also 'on the edge of a dream,' and it's a dream we are dedicated to making come true.

Alberta Trails

Autum's approach

By Irene Magnusson

The mercury dropped very close to freezing point on the night of August 27, and of our Full Sturgeon Moon, also the morning of our partial eclipse of said moon, caused by the shadow of the earth. This 'busy' night also saw the highest tides the coastal regions will experience for some time--maybe years. Perhaps there was frost in some low-lying spots, and this plus 2 degrees Celcius makes us realize that the end of summer approaches.

Some trees already show their golden under-color as the chlorophyll drains from their leaves. I have a horse-chestnut 'tree' (which never seems to get taller than a neat six or seven feet) that has many-petaled leaves, like tiny palms, and its habit is, in fall--no frost needed--to suddenly change from a nondescript green to brownish, to orange, to blazing red, all in the matter of a week or less. Then, a few days later, plop!, the leaves are on the ground.

Today, in bright sunshine, those red leaves glow like a flame in my garden, flanked by green rose bushes and golden rudbeckia, tall aster-like balls on graceful slender stems, and backed by our deep Alberta-blue sky. I have trouble leaving the camera lie, although I have circled it and snapped it every fall since it grew tall enough to catch my eye. That odd bush came as a baby seedling in a tobacco can from Fruitvale, B. C. and my brother's garden.

Yesterday a flock of geese (I think) Vee'd their way across my space, faint honks announcing their passing. Surely too soon for them to be heading south? More likely, just wandering about, strengthening their wings and looking over the grainfields to see which has been swathed and good for a feed...or searching for a water-way, to set down on for the night.

A few minutes after the thirty or so birds disappeared, a lone straggler, emitting periodic squawks, came up the same airway. He was really flogging it, mad at being left behind, you just knew--or perhaps scared. I sympathized. It's no fun being left behind and alone.

All the wildflowers are gone now, with the exception of the odd blue aster and a few second (or fifteenth) crop dandelions. Here and there wild rose leaves show a bright yellow spot of color. Their red apples, dotted thickly over every bush, guarantee good winter pickings for partridges and squirrels.

Yellow evening grosbeaks are happy to note the maples are hanging thick with keys, and the waxwings rejoice at the numbers of mountain ash in our many yards, heavily loaded with clumps of scarlet-orangy fruits.

From my son Mel, who lives along the Peace River, near Fairview, comes assurance, in a phone call this morning, that southerners can quit worrying about the depletion of the ducks and other waterfowl population. They are all up in the Peace country, gathering in massive flocks, he says, eyeing the crops, trying to decide where to fatten up for the long pull south to Texas, Mexico and the Caribbean.

Last week, as I drove along the Armistice Valley road, I saw a mass of crows, surely two or three hundred, dotting the meadow near where my Grandfather's house and garden once were. I fumbled for my camera, but the second my foot came down on the brakes those black fellows rose and winged away, into the bush and out of my range. I hope they were eating grasshoppers. I've noticed a sharp increase in the numbers of these pesky little critters around my yard in the past few weeks. Those crows will pick quite a few kernels of grain, too, before they lift their wings some extra cool morning and head for southern parts.

Swaths are growing, mile on mile--first the hay, then canola, and soon barley, oats, wheat. The fluffy canola swaths always look like a bumper crop, but much of it is only stiff branches. Only the mound in the bin will say if it's been a worthwhile year. But I do think, from my viewing place, in my car, on the roadway, that the crops appear much better than the hot dry spring had promised.

Of my own small 'crop'--peas, beans, flowers, etc., in my garden--I have harvested a bumper crop. I was able to water it a few times, when the rain refused to fall. However, the wild berries have been plentiful, too, where allowed to grow, so perhaps my personal watering wasn't all that important.

So Goodbye, Summer, Hello, Autumn. Since we cannot deter the passing days, we must enjoy what we get, in each season. Summer is glorious--but it is gone. Autumn is colorful, sometimes generous--and always gives us fair warning to prepare for winter.

I hope the farmers will not be too disappointed when they tally their gleanings, and that there will be no catastrophic weather to deal with before it is all safe in the granaries.

MY BEAUTIFUL HORSE-CHESTNUT TREE — In an early autumn flame of glory.

WHAT'S NEWS at the Library

Now that the Summer Reading Program is over I'd like to thank Kris Ann Maas and Michelle Whitlock for the great job they did for the library for the last four months. Good luck with your education! We will all miss you!

I'd like to welcome back Diane Fraess to the library again. It is a real pleasure to have such an experienced worker back again. Welcome also, Faye Smith, our new library assistant. Faye is well-known in the community.

Charlene Baker has made us another group of figures for a wall in the children's area. Come in and see 'Winnie the Pooh' and all the rest of the gang. Thank you very much, Charlene. We are very fortunate to have such a talented volunteer. We now have three very attractive wall displays in the children's area: 'Snow White and the Seven Dwarfs', 'The Jungle Book' and now 'Winnie the Pooh.'

The library now has a trial subscription to the weekly publication 'Financial Times of Canada.' We have had requests for this newspaper.

Several new children's music cassettes have been purchased: Fred Penner's Place by Fred Penner, Smorgasbord by Sharon, Lois and Bram, One Light, One Sun by Raffi and Everything Grows by Raffi.

ADULT FICTION: A Thief of Time by Tony Hillerman--When a noted anthropologist arrives at an ancient Anasazi Indian ruin to dig for clay pots, she is at first angry to discover that the pre-Navajo burial site has already been despoiled, then terrified by what looms out of the darkness. You must read this book as it is a rich and evocative mystery.

NON-FICTION: When Rabbit

Howls by Truddi Chase--A very moving story of 92 personalities who share the body of the woman known as Truddi Chase, as they tell their astonishing autobiography.

SOMETHING TO SWING ABOUT--Opening day at A's Driving Range, southeast of Elk Point, was a busy one, with numerous golfers stopping by to try their prowess on a bucket of balls. The range is owned and operated by Brian Anderson, who 'had been thinking about this for sometime--this spring, I said, why wait any longer.' The initial interest shows that this could become a very popular place with local clubswingers.

JUNIOR LEADER HONORED--Jim Orr of the Elk Point 4-H MultiClub Beef Project presents Leanne Drobot with a certificate and pin honoring her efforts as the club's Junior Leader during the 1987-88 club year.

GOLDEN ANNIVERSARY DRAW--New Treasury Branch manager Bill Tremblay pulls the name of Nettie Babenek from the draw box for the early bird $50 prize in the Alberta Treasury Branch Golden Anniversary Celebration draw. Her entry will return to the barrel for the September 29, 1988, grand prize draw for a Caribbean cruise, to be made at Rocky Mountain House, site of Alberta's first Treasury Branch. Agricultural Society hosts horse show

On Sunday, August 28, the Elk Point Agricultural Society held its Family Horse Show and jackpot events at Stoney Lake Stampede Grounds.

The Horse Show was a huge success with a record attendance of 80 horses entered, totalling 285 entries in all. Due to the large classes this year, some of the jackpot gymkhana classes had to be cancelled due to the impending darkness. However, we managed to have senior and junior barrels and poles, and the Hot Dog Race, before it was too dark to see. All in all, everyone had a great time and went home smiling.

Rose and Jerry Aherne catered out hot concession all day, and put on a delicious steak supper after it was all over, which was greatly appreciated.

The Agriculture Committee would like to extend a very special thank you to Rob and Nora Davidson of the High Chapparral Training Stable, Two Hills, for donating their time and expertise in helping run the show smoothly and on course. Also, thanks to Laurie Leaf, Bert Nielsen and Darlene MacDonald in donating their time to work all day (and a long day it was) on the show desk, taking entries and keeping track of us all. Many thanks to our judge, Dianne Jackson, from Bonnyville, and our ringmaster Larry MacDonald, for a job well done, also to Joe Wadleigh for building our excellent trail equipment. Last but not least, a big thank you to our show sponsors for their generous support, without which we would not have been able to put on such a successful show.

Winners and sponsors are as follows: SHOWMANSHIP, SENIOR--Bit'n'Spurs; 1. Paulgaard Equestrian Centre, Provost; 2. Stan Smith; 3. Charlene Baker; 4. Jessie Strome; 5. Paulguard Equestrian; 6. Jim Davies.

LRA's best compete at Showdown '88

It was Showdown by name, and showdown by nature this weekend, as the Lakeland Rodeo Association's top competitors met in St. Paul for five breathtaking performances this past weekend, to determine the year's champions.

The Polaris Arena was packed to the rafters for Sunday's final performance, as cowboys and cowgirls took their final tries for the trophies, with the winners of each event escorted by newly crowned LRA Queen Tanya Sekura in a victory ride around the arena.

Shawn Vant of Millet went into the Bareback Bronc Riding finals in fifth place, and came out the champion by over 80 points, with no less than three first place rides, a second, and a two-three split to his credit. The 18 year old former steer- and bullrider made the best Bareback ride of the rodeo Sunday, scoring 76 points on Verne Franklin's 'Logan's Run' in the event sponsored by Edmonton Northlands. Former St. Paul cowboy Ted Hehr, now of Sherwood Park, placed second, while Glen Cole of Marwayne was third.

The only three cowboys to rope all five of their calves wound up in a three-way tie for Calf Roping honors, with the excitement mounting as the calves were herded back to the chute for the tie-breaking rope-off. All three again caught their calves, but the flying hands of Wimborne cowboy Garnet Smith outdid his rivals by more than a full second for the championship, with his 8.9 second time exactly equalling his time in the regular run-through. Dennis Johnson of Whitecourt placed second with 10 seconds flat, and Gene Stuckey of Stettler was third with 10.9 seconds. Canada Dry sponsored the Calf Roping.

There was keen competition among the Junior Steer Riders at Showdown, with only three buck-offs during the five performances, and Sunday scores in an 8-point spread. Fifteen year old Mark Shirley of Edson, a WRRRA season leader for the past two years and CFR and Calgary Stampede runner-up, placed in the top 3 in four out of five Finals runs for the championship buckle sponsored by Little Implements, Vermilion. Robert Bowers of Drayton Valley placed second and Corey Haeberle of Viking was third, with season leader Stuart Anderson of Grand Centre ending up fourth after a disappointing ride and reride Sunday. Also sponsoring the Junior Steer Riding were St. Paul Foundry and the Alf Thomas Memorial Fund.

Ladies Barrel Racing Season Leader Cindy Gamroth of Wetaskiwin overcame the trauma of two tipped barrels in Friday's performance to put in three winning runs, including the allover best time of 13.500 seconds, to outdistance her competition by more than double their points. Tying for second were Marci Powell of Edmonton and Peggy Borgstrom of Ferintosh. Ms. Bergstrom was named Most Sportsmanlike Barrel Racer, while St. Paul cowgirl Rhonda Bailey won the Best Dressed award. Gratton's Farm Supply sponsored the event.

The second tie of the finals came in the Steer Wrestling, with Reg Pomerantz of Warburg going up against Jeff Bowers in the tie-breaking round. Bowers successfully tipped his steer in 5.3 seconds, while Pomerantz was could not get a good hold on his animal, giving Bowers the win in the event sponsored by Fountain Tire. Australian Grant Mair was third.

A graceful, high-kicking ride on Franklin's 'Phoenix' for the rodeo's top score of 76 brought season leader Tom Watt of Wainwright the Saddle Bronc championship, while Loren Christianson of Camp Creek and Keith Stewart of Red Deer, who led Watt going into the last performance, ended up in a tie for second. CFCW sponsored the Saddle Bronc event.

Another three-way tie was totalled up in the Team Roping, with Daryn Knapp of Mayerthorpe and Dennis Johnson of Whitecourt outroping Dion and Carter Yellowbird of Hobbema in the rope-off by a mere two-tenths of a second for the championship, while Phil Campbell of Blackfoot and Doug Phipps of Lloydminster came up empty. Griffith Saddlery, Tall Horse Saddlery and Lloydminster Heavy Crude sponsored the event.

The formerly female bastion of Junior Barrel Racing was shattered Sunday with Shaun Jeffrey's win. The 13-year-old, the first boy to go to the LRA finals in the event, calmly racked up three seconds, a third and a fourth for the championship. A tipped barrel left former St. Paul cowgirl Terryl Garriock, who came into Sunday's performance in the lead, in a tie for second with

Tami Thirsk of Viking. Sponsors of the event were Circle H Tack Shop, Eastgate Chrysler, Rangeland Plumbing and Graphica.]

The world's most dangerous sport brought the toughest competition of all, with the score sitting at Bulls-22, Cowboys-18, going into Sunday's rodeo. One by one, each bullrider bit the dust, until only one, hometown cowboy Derek Hehr, was left to do the job. And do it, he did, with a classy ride aboard Franklin's ugly customer, Hindu, to win the Showdown '88 Bull Riding, sponsored by Lil Joe's Western Shops, to the tune of thunderous applause from the jubilant crowd. Second place went to Dion Roscoe of Willingdon, while Bernie Bowe of Ponoka was third.

Dennis Johnson of Whitecourt was named All Around Champion, and was presented with a handsome bronze rodeo statue from Coors, the official sponsors of the Lakeland Rodeo Association.

OPPORTUNITY

In 1979, after years of construction industry experience, Ed Croteau and his partners identified the need for truss products in North-Central Alberta.

CHALLENGE

They needed aggressive start-up financing to build a competitive, state-of-the-art plant.

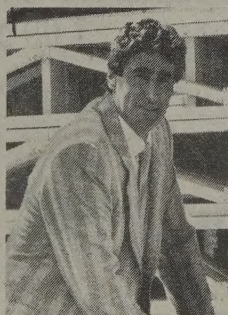

SOLUTION

They went to AOC and received an excellent financial package and valuable advice on centralizing the plant in Elk Point. Elk Point Truss now employs up to 25 people in designing and manufacturing trusses for homes, barns and commercial buildings.

Your nearest office is in St. Paul, 645-6356.

Ed Croteau, President and General Manager of Elk Point Truss Ltd. The company serves residential and commercial customers across the West.

AOC has offices in Brooks, Calgary, Edmonton, Edson, Grande Prairie, Lethbridge, Lloydminster, Medicine Hat, Peace River, Red Deer, St. Paul, and Ponoka (Head Office).

WEDDING ANNOUNCEMENT — Gordon and Sharon Kuhn of Elk Point wish to announce the marriage of their eldest daughter, Susan Barbara to Grant Frame of Edmonton. The wedding took place in the Elk Point United Church on August 6, 1988. Susan and Grant are residing in Edmonton.

ARCHAEOLOGICAL DIGGING—in the native encampment area known as Fort George Plantation have unearthed charred beams and rocks which indicate that a building, to this time not mentioned in any known records of the fur trading forts, was located here. Archaeologist Lynda Guleson plans several more weeks with trowel and brush to try to discover more about the history of the building, its uses and occupants.

TOURISM TIDBIT

For every Albertan that travels internationally, two international visitors come to Alberta.

Alberta Tourism Pulse, September 1987

TOURISM TIDBIT

Because of the Take an Alberta Break promotion, Albertans now think that Alberta has many interesting events and activities; it's a great place to take trips with friends; and Alberta has lots to offer for recreational activities.

Travel Alberta, Awareness and Interest Monitor, October 1987

TOURISM TIDBIT

Canadian tourists spend twenty billion dollars every year. 80% of that is spent on transportation, accommodation and food and beverages.

Profits, Spring 1988

TOURISM TIDBIT

The seniors' leisure market is definitely growing. In 1881, 73% of people over 65 were employed in Canada. One hundred years later only 11% of seniors worked.
